

'South Pacific'

Author Finds It
Uneasy Paradise

RETURN TO PARADISE, by James A. Michener; Random House, New York.

"Some Enchanted Evening" was an unborn score when I first met the literature of James A. Michener. He came back from World War II and wrote "Tales of the South Pacific," a piece of writing that was good enough to win the Pulitzer fiction prize for 1947.

Then Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, 2d, picked up our author and rocketed him to the stars with the musical version, "South Pacific." Enter, "Some Enchanted Evening" and the finest musical-comedy score of our generation.

Here's friend Michener, then, in the puzzling year 1951... world famous both among bookmen and the people of the stage... what can he do that won't turn out to be an anti-climax?

What does the guy do? Why, he does the most dangerous thing of all — he goes back to the place where he was and writes a sequel. It's a literary 10-4-1 that a sequel to a best-seller will fall flat in its brightly-colored jacket.

But not Michener. He has the golden touch.

Back he goes to the land of sarongs, coconuts, and volcanoes — and comes up with a book that makes "Tales of the South Pacific" sound like a newspaper serial. His "Return to Paradise" is one of America's immortals — the kind of a book you'll wrap up in for some enchanted evening, this year, and the year after... leaving all other books behind.

It is original in form, adventurous in time and space, and potent in thought and words.

Michener for the first time in all literature struck on the idea of writing a book in paired chapters. The first chapter is a fact-reporting essay on one of the South Pacific islands.

The second chapter of the pair is a fiction story about the same island. Thus it goes all the way through the book. He writes an essay on "The Atoll," and the following chapter is an atoll story. "Mr. Morgan," he writes an essay, "Guadalcanal," and the companion fiction chapter is, "The Story."

The result is absolutely fascinating. In mood and manner and characterization "Return to Paradise" isn't a collection of short stories at all. It is a novel, whose light and shining suit of armor is worn by that new and unpredictable Joan of Arc, Miss Pacific.

This is the Western Ocean, and these are the Ocean People... who know love and happiness, philosophy and courage, but are visited also by adventures, pestilence, war, and death.

These are the Ocean People... "Povana's Daughter" who left her Polynesian home for a Yankee island to get herself a pair of shoes.

And there is a desolate white planter on Guadalcanal ("The Story") who helped a man from New York find the bones of his pilot-son while his own boy was dying on the other side of the world.

"The Jungle" who showed the bossy woman from Boston that while making a husband she had lost a man.

These are the Ocean People... But the essay chapters between tell an equally fascinating tale of terror for the Western Ocean itself.

There is a chapter, "Fiji." The East Indians have come into Fiji. Now they outnumber both the native blacks and the British. They want to vote. But the British are under mandate to protect the Fijians, whom the Indian Hindus hate. Voting means Hindu control, diplomatic relations with Mother India — and extension of the long arm of Asia into Mid-Pacific. Answer that one...

And there is a flaming chapter called "New Guinea." This is the outpost land that protects Australia. Australians revile the name of our Woodrow Wilson because years ago he made the mistake of advocating the colonization of New Guinea by the Japanese. Australia stopped him — but the ugly scar of American misjudgment remains. Today they say, on New Guinea, that penetration of the land by the Indonesians from the old Dutch empire will probably come within a year. If it isn't stopped it spells doom of Australia and New Zealand.

This is the book I am writing about — a galloping atlas with the tongue of a Marco Polo. Michener by name. If you think "South Pacific" is all music, brush up on the words and the man who invented them. They are an enchantment more universal even than song.

McClellan Says
Government Big
Inflation Threat

Little Rock, Oct. 17 (AP) — The principal source of inflation is the federal government itself, says U.S. Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.).

The senior Arkansas senator told delegates to the 17th annual Arkansas Municipal League convention here last night, that economic "wizards, who constantly insist on creating more and more government functions and in greatly expanding existing paternalistic programs and services for the professed benefit of the people," openly advocate only two principal remedies for controlling inflation — rigid government controls and exorbitant taxes.

"Their third and ultimate objective which they try to conceal," he said, "is government ownership or nationalization of our basic industries."

The senator also questioned the conduct of the war in Korea and all but urged the use of atomic weapons against the Chinese Communists.

"It has been my considered and expressed opinion that ever since Red China entered the fight, we have in fact been engaged in an all-out war with Red China," said McClellan.

While he did not specifically call for either atomic war on China or an American withdrawal from Korea, McClellan said:

"I seriously doubt that our policy of fighting in a restricted area with limited weapons will ever achieve a conclusive victory which can serve as a basis for an acceptable peace."

"In fact, I wonder if we are not actually fighting the kind of war Russia wants us to fight."

McClellan said Russia apparently hopes to weaken American fighting and economic strength while gaining time for development and production of armaments, including atomic weapons.

Convention of B&PW Clubs to Convene Here Saturday

Hope B&PW Club will be hostess to the Southern District Conference of Arkansas Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs on October 20-21. The conference headquarters will be at the Hotel Barlow.

The Arkansas Federation of B&PW Clubs is divided into four districts: The Northeastern, Northwestern, Central, and Southern. The clubs of the southern district, which will be represented in Hope at this meeting, will be El Dorado, Camden, Pine Bluff, Star City, Stuttgart, Warren, Smackover, Stamps, Lewisville, Bradley, Texarkana, Ashdown, DeQueen, Prescott, Fordyce, Crossett, Hamburg, Monticello and Hope-Emmett.

A state convention is held in the spring of each year and during the ensuing months each district holds its own conference.

The National B&PW Club was organized in St. Louis in 1919, and the Hope Club was organized in 1924, sponsored by the Texarkana Club, with Miss Beryl Henry as first president.

Miss Henry, Miss Clarice Cannon and Mrs. Frank Russell, who were charter members of the club, are still active in the club work. There are now 45 members in the Hope organization, and Mrs. David Griffin is the present president.

Throughout the United States, District of Columbia, Hawaii and Alaska, there are 2700 clubs with a membership of over 160,000.

The Hope B&PW Club is one of the oldest civic clubs in the city. It has sponsored many community projects, the latest of which is rendering assistance to the youth of the county through its Student Loan Fund.

Building May Be Factor in Atomic Tests

Las Vegas, Nev., Oct. 17 (AP) — A hint that construction problems, as well as the weather, might be a factor delaying the atomic testing of troops met today with "no comment" from atomic energy commission officials.

"Exercise Desert Rock" — the joint AEC and army test — is expected to get underway this week. But with more haziness and low clouds forecast for Las Vegas this morning, the AEC again saw no chance of beginning the series of blasts today.

Test Manager Carroll L. Tyler admitted that "construction has not been moving as rapidly as we had hoped for, perhaps," but he declined to say whether construction vital to the test was involved.

There was speculation, but no official confirmation, that troops participating in the tests might first warm up with practice maneuvers involving non-atomic blasts. Such "dry runs" preceded the series of nuclear explosions here last winter.

Tyler and Dr. Alvin C. Graves, scientific test chief, put in a full day yesterday at Mercury City, the AEC camp at Yucca Flat, which has been designated as the site of the forthcoming explosions. Yucca Flat is another dry lake north of Frenchman Flat, scene of last winter's tests, on the 640 square mile grounds.

Nearly 1,000 scientific workers are on hand for the test, and 5,000 soldiers are ready at nearby Camp Desert Rock. Only 1,000 of the troops will be actively engaged in the first simulated atomic battle-ground, about 75 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

No Low Price
Necessary for Cotton

No farmer has to take too low a price for his cotton this year, Earl Martindale, chairman of the County PMA committee said today.

"We'll have a good crop coming to market this fall," Mr. Martindale explained, but the carry over stocks are small and demand is near the highest on record. With Government loans available to protect the price and "feed" the crop to market as needed, farmers will have only themselves to blame if they flood the market with their 1951 cotton crop."

Experience under past cotton loan programs indicates that farmers benefit from orderly marketing which the government loans make possible.

National loan rates average 31.46 cent per pound for Middling 7-8 inch cotton and 31.71 cents for 15-16 inch. With a loan, the producer not only assures himself of at least that much income, but he helps strengthen the market and protect prices.

If the market price advances, the producer can repay his loan and sell his cotton above the loan value of any profit resulting from its sale by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

For the 1948 crop, such profits amounted to $87 million, or an average of about $17.50 a bale. Since the loan is "non-recourse," the producer has no obligation to make good on any loss the government might incur from a decline in the market price.

"The cotton loan can help a lot," Chairman Martindale said, and its only common sense for a farmer to protect his investment with a loan in years when a large crop could upset the market. Each farmer must be the judge on places, his cotton under loan, but he should consider carefully the advantage of the loan program.

Information about the cotton loan program may be obtained at the county PMA office.

"Other programs of great interest to farmers now are the winter legume and pasture programs, Mr. Martindale said.

Since October 31 is the final recommended seeding date for all winter legumes and pasture grasses or legume seed all farmers holding prior approvals for any of the programs are urged to contact the county PMA office as soon as possible for their purchase order if they desire to use this plan to purchase the seed. No orders for seed can be given after October 26.

All farmers who have prior approvals for any practice expiring on October 31, should report to the county office prior to November 1. Any approvals not reported by this date will be cancelled and will result in a loss to the farmer of the amount obligated by the approval. An extension of time may be granted for practices other than seeding practices provided application is made prior to the expiration date. If you desire additional information please contact the county office at your earliest convenience.

City Council
in Routine
Session

Hope City Council, in routine meeting last night, gave the go-ahead sign on two building permits, said the Fire Department's old street flusher and took under advisement two proposals from city property owners.

J. M. Atkins was granted permission to build a poultry house in the Oaklawn addition on Berry street and Murray Thompson was allowed to build a gasoline service station in the 600 block on North Hazel.

The old street washer which the fire department replaced with a new one was sold to the town of Oakhaven for $300. Several towns were written to submit bids but the only one received was from Oakhaven.

Representatives of the Blue Shield and Blue Cross insurance group presented its plan for city employees and the council took it under consideration.

A proposal was submitted by property owners headed by Guy Grigg to close an alley between 11th and 15th streets, running from Main to Walker. The issue was turned over to the street department.

More property owners in the Hope-Basket Company vicinity told the council that soot and cinders from the mill on South Harvey were getting worse instead of better. They previously they asked that something be done and the Basket Company owners assured everything possible would be done to correct the situation. The mayor and city attorney were instructed to look into the matter and report back to the council.

The council voted to let the city assume the unpaid balance on the Spring Hill road water line in accordance with a contract since several new customers have started using the line.

Egypt, Britain
Are Rushing in Reinforcements

Cairo, Oct. 17 (AP) — Ismailia in the Suez canal area was an armed camp bristling with machineguns and tanks today, and as both British and Egyptians rushed reinforcements there as British faced new trouble in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

One leader of the powerful pro-Egyptian Sudanese Ashigga party called upon the people of SQU British authorities there in the campaign to drive the British out of the land over which Egypt now has proclaimed King Farouk the sole monarch.

In the Suez canal area, the British reported that the Lancashire fusiliers, military and RAF forces and the Egyptian people were in control of the situation after the city of 50,000 was rocked by violent rioting yesterday.

A release distributed in Cairo by the RAF said "almost all the shops and buildings (in Ismailia) are closed and the town resembles an armed camp."

British parachute troops, 3,500 strong, were taking off from Nicosia, Cyprus, only 400 miles away, to reinforce the British in the Canal zone, where at least seven and possibly 12 persons were killed in yesterday's violence.

Ismailia was divided into two sections, the western part held by British troops grimly alert behind barbed wire, with Bren guns nosing through.

The Egyptian sector was patrolled by Egyptian police on a 24-hour emergency alert.

Egyptian officials said six British army trucks were burned or otherwise destroyed by mobs in the violence yesterday. Other sources said at least 17 trucks were burned.

Ismailia government officials said British troops armed with Bren guns and Tommy guns went into and encircled the western sector in large numbers at the first outbreak of mob violence.

An Associated Press reporter in Ismailia said he saw no sign that British families of militarymen were preparing to leave although they have been instructed to be ready to go at a moment's notice.

Planes already were ferrying in British parachute troops from Cyprus to the Suez area to reinforce the garrison.

The British commander of the garrison, Lt. Gen. George Erskine told his men in a broadcast last night "we are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out" of the canal area.

"We are not looking for trouble," he said, "but we shall deal with it quite firmly if we meet it."

Egypt's Premier Mustapha El Nahas Pasha in a press statement urged his people to remain calm. "The rioting, he said, 'could stand in the way of our national aspirations.'"

A Midweek Roundup Has Cure for Snoring, Appeal From a Young Japanese Pen Pal

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP) — The midweek roundup:

Akira Ohguchi, a 18-year-old Japanese schoolboy, has his troubles. He explained them in the following letter to the Associated Press:

"I am sorry I'll surprise you with this unexpected letter from Japan. On the 3rd of September when I was at school, my house was burnt. A letter from my American pen friend I got after four years of hard toil was also burnt. I have not read it yet.

"I am very, very sad for that. I cannot find the suitable words to apologize to the pen friend. I cannot write to him or her as I don't have his or her address. I think I must thank him and apologize to him."

Akira then asked for help in locating his lost American pen pal. Anybody wanting to cheer up a young Japanese boy studying English can do so by dropping him a line at 2099 Hiratsuka, Hiratsuka City, Kanagawa prefecture, Japan.

World Series Echoes: Joe DiMaggio was at bat in a crucial game with the New York Giants.

A fan stood up in the stands and yelled at peak voice:

"Hit it you blankety, blankety, blank!"

Suddenly the fan felt a tap on his shoulder and heard a mild voice in his ears:

"I wouldn't call him that if I were you."

The fan turned around and found himself looking into the eyes of Joe's younger brother — Dom DiMaggio, Boston Red Sox outfielder.

Having difficulty with your husband's snoring, ladies? My own wife has. A reader, Miss Lennore, more trouble than pickups.

Clinton of Little Rock, Ark., clipped and mailed in the following solution:

"How can you cure someone of snoring? Easy. By good advice, cooperation, kindness — and stuff. I'm an old sock in his mouth."

My own feeling is this wouldn't stop a good snore. It would just strain it.

I have a friend who collects barroom signs. He says this one isn't new — but it's his favorite:

"Why must you be so disagreeable when, with a little effort, you could be a real stinker?"

Eerie dialogue overheard in a barbershop:

"Marriage is a fifty-fifty deal," the manicurist said to her customer. "I told my husband right at the start: 'I'll sew the buttons on the clothes you wear, and you'll scrub the floor I walk on.'"

"How long you been married?"

"Two weeks," said the manicurist, "and everything's worked out swell. I never been happier."

Wonder how the husband likes her formula?

Chinese Forces
Retreat Before
Allied Attack

U.S. 8th Army Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 17 (AP) — Allied infantrymen drove to within rifle range of Kumsong on the central front today.

Chinese defenders retreated slowly before the advancing U.S. 24th division and the South Korean 8th division.

The Allies gained 1,500 to 2,000 yards in the fifth day of their drive toward the Reds' central Korean bastion.

The Reds were described officially as "slowly withdrawing." Whether this was general along the entire 22-mile central sector remained to be seen. It was still possible for the Reds to make a stand south of Kumsong.

Allied infantrymen trapped a pocket of Chinese on the highest peak guarding the southern approach to Kumsong. First estimates placed the number of trapped Reds at about 800. But a briefing officer said slackening resistance as Americans and Colombian troops attacked the crests indicated the number may have been 80.

The 24th Division moved 1,000 yards forward to close the last gap in the trap around the Reds.

"We're going in and clean them out," said Lt. Col. Albert L. Thornton of Birmingham, Ala.

U. S. troops and Colombian infantrymen began the assault. Artillery covered them from newly captured flanking hills.

More than 40 hills have been captured in the five-day advance on Kumsong. Three United Nations divisions have advanced seven miles along a 22-mile front, Allied artillery moved up to strategic peaks where it could blast Kumsong, the main Communist bastion on the central front.

Diplomatic Names Flow on Iran Mess

By JOHN SCALI
(For James Marlow)

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—The state department and the British foreign office are calling each other non-diplomatic names over who is to blame for the 21-earr mess in the Middle East.

Behind the scenes, American diplomats complain bitterly that the current wave of anti-Western demonstrations is due to British stubbornness in clinging to an outdated colonial policy in the Middle East. If the British had needed American advice earlier, they say, London would have voluntarily offered the Iranians and Egyptians better deals, thus averting the present crisis in these areas.

The British effort that the Americans are quick to give advice and even quicker to dodge responsibility for helping solve the Middle East's acute problems.

The growing anti-Western riots and demonstrations, say the British, are a direct reflection of the Arab world's pent-up bitterness at the United States for what they term pampering the poor Jewish government and discarding the Arabs.

Besides, the British say, the United States has indirectly encouraged Iran and Egypt to kick the British around by adopting an impractical "head-to-the-wind" attitude.

And although they don't say so, the British attitude suggests they suspect that the state department is secretly trying to shove Britain aside in the Middle East and take over as the dominant Western power in this highly important region.

The "you're-to-blame" attitude is hampering Britain and the United States as they try fruitlessly to find some joint policy for restoring order.

Both are gravely worried lest the Iranian and Egyptian problems spill over to other Arab countries and threaten vital Allied defense bases and essential Middle Eastern oil supplies.

For the moment, the strategy will be to maintain British troops by force if necessary, in the strategic Suez canal zone. Both American and British military strategists are reported to agree that the West must hang on to this at all costs.

The state department, however, is not prepared to stop at this. It wants a positive approach that will convince the Arabs to ditch their defense against the Allies rather than a hot war.

But now that the Egyptians have scornfully rejected the West's carefully devised plans for a Middle Eastern defense command, it appears stumped on what to do next.

The armed between Egyptian rioters and British troops in the canal zone yesterday — which cost lives — will not improve things.

It is obvious that both Britain and the United States have seriously underestimated the fanatic zeal with which Arab Nationalists are clamoring for complete independence and equality.

Perhaps this is because the United States and most Western countries have kept their eyes on Ko-

PAUSING atop the rise, I screamed back at my enemies. "Celan Man! Is going to fly to Wana! Yata from this very spot. You will never see him again. His spirit will haunt you. You have killed him."

Topping this melodramatic pronouncement with a silent prayer that there were no Indian athletes among my devoted followers, I took a short run across the top of the rise, leaped as far as I could and landed 20 feet away and below to a patch of matted wire-grass. From here I made my way through the wooded tangle employing every trick of trail-hiding the Sioux had taught me.

The dry tangle persisted right up to the stream's edge, allowing me to dive into the water without leaving a toe-track to point my pursuers. I swam under water as far as I could, surfacing well out in the pond behind one of the beaver lodges.

Fortunately there was no one home. The last thing I wanted was to have a couple of excited beaver indignantly making big, broad water-tracks away from that particular lodge. The water was a bit cold but otherwise I was very snug. These lodges being from six to eight feet across with an air space on the inside of about a foot and a half's height. My retreat was as quick as a flash. But to no more elegant castle could be imagined.

Ashore, I could hear the Cheyenne crashing about in the thicket, calling back and forth in challenge and puzzlement.

"You saw the leap, Cow Runner. Don't say you didn't." "I saw it, but that is foolhardiness. He's around here somewhere." Cow Runner was obdurate. For three hours he kept the others beating and re-beating the brush. But any chance they had of finding my trail was gone after the first hour.

A sentry nodding over his rifle was posted outside the general's tent, posing my first real problem. Tapping him behind the ear with rock was no trick but catching him and his rifle, both falling, simultaneously in different directions, was harder. Laying man and rifle comfortably out in the warm dirt, I stepped over them to the flap of the general's tent.

"Colonel Clayton calling on General Custer."

"What the devil?" Custer's words were a combination of surprise and interest. He was, without, about as fat a cucumber as you will find in many a patch of pickle plants. But soldier-like he backed his interest with a long cavalry pistol, scooped smoothly off a map table as he turned to face me.

I DARE say we made a picture, he in his long underwear and a pair of pyjamas, I stark naked; for when I say the Sioux stripped for that reason, I mean they stripped me. Remember, too, my skin was burned copper-bronze by years of Oglaia life, my hair shoulder-long in two thick Sioux braids with the scalplock of a Fox Lodge soldier reaching up in front.

Custer may have absorbed my introductory line but for all practical purposes, six-foot-three of silt-eaten hostile Sioux, complete with eight-inch scalp knife, had just walked through 600 cavalrymen, appearing, without so much as a polite cough, in his tent.

Such a moment should call for deathless words. They weren't forthcoming.

"Guard!" Custer called. "I knocked him out with a rock just now. But I come in peace, to save your life."

'Too Early' Is Reaction of Ike's Backers

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft's non-surprise announcement that he wants the 1952 Republican presidential nomination drew a "too early" reaction today from backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But there also was a feeling in the Ike-for-president camp that the general should announce his availability soon — provided he announces it at all — lest Taft get too long a head start in the race for national convention delegates.

Taft yesterday became the first declared presidential candidate in either major party, announcing his intentions a full nine months ahead of the GOP nominating convention in Chicago.

The Ohio senator followed through by attacking the Truman administration's health program and spending policies, thus giving a forerunner of the campaign he is likely to wage.

Speaking to the American Dental association convention here last night, the senator proposed creation of a military-civilian commission to determine "just what is the economic capacity" of the nation to cope with defense spending.

He said he believes the projected outlay is "beyond what the program ought to be" and called it "a threat to the stability of the country."

Taft also had harsh words for what he called socialized medicine. The government "has a proper right to the welfare picture," he said, but it should be defined "so that it does not mean government control of welfare and health."

Among his senate colleagues, there was some speculation that Taft took a risky course by announcing his candidacy so far in advance of the convention.

"There's an old political axiom that the first candidate in the field sets himself up as a target for all the later comers."

It was recalled that Taft likewise announced he would seek the nomination nine months ahead of the GOP convention in 1948 — had they lost the race to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. He was also an announced candidate in 1940.

This year, however, Taft was urged by Senator Brewster (R-Mo.) and others to get his hat into the ring without further delay.

And Senator Young (R-ND), a Taft backer, said he thought the Ohioan was wise in doing so.

"He's the best of the Republicans now prominently mentioned," Young told a reporter.

Ismailla said 200 Egyptian police were being dispatched by special train from Cairo to reinforce the 1,500 Egyptian police already there, and that 300 others were being sent to Port Said. Yesterday's violence centered in these two cities.

An interior ministry communiqué issued here said seven persons were killed in the clashes at the two canal points. In Ismailla Egyptian officials last night had reported 11 of their countrymen dead — seven there and four at Port Said. Other reports from Port Said put the death toll there at five.

A British army communiqué today described the situation in the canal area as "under control and all quiet." It said that "certain families in the Suez area have been evacuated to a safe place."

The Egyptian communiqué also said that "order reigns everywhere." Government officials at Ismailla described the situation there as "very bad." British forces, they said, now controlled all entrances to the canal city, despite a request by Egyptian police that they withdraw and leave the policing to the Egyptians.

Prescott Minister Is State Officer

Jonesboro, Oct. 16 (AP) — The Rev. Dale McCoy of the First Baptist church of Gordon is the new president of the Baptist State Sunday school convention, which is in session here. He succeeds the Rev. Herbert McGlamery of Pine Bluff. Other officers elected this morning are: Secretary, Mrs. Helen Emmons of the Polaski Heights Baptist church of Little Rock and eight vice presidents from the various districts of the state. They are: Northwest, James A. Griggs, First Baptist church of Fayetteville; north central district, Gray Evans, Berryville; northeast district, Leeland Hall, Rector; west central district, Kay Mansen, Mena; central district, Clyde Freed, First Church, El Dorado; southwest district, Wesley Lindsey, Prescott.

The convention opened Monday morning and ends this afternoon. More than 600 are registered.

Action Is Passed on Jessup

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP) — The senate foreign relations committee passed up action today on Philip C. Jessup's nomination as a U. N. delegate and Chairman Connally (D-Tex) declined to promise that the committee would meet again before congress adjourns.

Senator Brewster (R-Me) immediately accused administration leaders of "stalling" to prevent a senate vote on the nomination, adding that "they evidently know they are licked."

Senator Sparkman (D-Ala) said that if congress adjourns Saturday as planned, he did not see how it would be possible to get senate action on the nomination and still "do justice" both to Jessup and his opponents.

But he told reporters that the foreign relations subcommittee he heads has twice been ready to close the hearings on Jessup's nomination only to have Harold E. Stassen ask for an opportunity to testify.

Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and Republican leader, testified before the subcommittee yesterday for a second time.

Jessup has accepted an invitation to reply to Stassen tomorrow. For that reason the subcommittee called off a meeting it had scheduled today to consider the nomination.

Both Brewster and Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) urged the full foreign relations committee at its closed-door meeting to take up Jessup's appointment then, saying they felt the time had come to vote.

With Sparkman arguing strongly against them, the move lost.

New Crisis Explodes in Moslem World

London, Oct. 16 (AP) — A new crisis exploded today in the jittery Moslem world with the assassination of Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan. The Pakistani situation already was a threatening one, with that country quarrelling bitterly with neighboring Hindu India over the claim to the rich princely state of Kashmir.

These developments came as the three big Western powers were attempting to set up a Middle East defense system. Egypt so far has rebuffed the plan.

The other crises in Islam: Egypt — The Egyptians have voted to scrap their 1936 treaty with Britain, ordering the British out of the strategic Suez Canal area and out of the jointly ruled Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Violent anti-foreign demonstrations raged in the canal area and elsewhere in Egypt.

Iran — The United Nations security council is hearing Britain's complaint against Iran for expelling British technicians, following Iran's recent nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian oil company's holdings.

Iraq — This Arab nation, ruled by King Feisal II, is considering demands for revisions of its oil treaty with the British.

Jordan — King Abdullah, friend of Britain, was assassinated recently. This nation, bordering Israel, is the focal point of a scheme for a "great crescent" Arab amalgamation.

Syria — The scene of a number of political assassinations. The real power now is Col. Adab Shishakli, army chief of staff. Syria, Lebanon and Jordan are engaged in talks in talks in Paris which the United Nations conciliation commission hopes will lead to a permanent Korean war. Last night, Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia told Legionnaires the American people will demand stronger military action in Korea unless the Reds show good faith in the Kaesong truce talks.

He said the "master plan" in the Kremlin "may touch off another world war which will develop Moscow itself if Kaesong is used as a 'cloak for treachery.'"

While Legionnaires applauded, Russell, chairman of the senate armed forces committee, said: "who knows the liar of his chief will not be led to a slow death through the manipulation of steel and slaves. If he continues this course, one of the fires will get out of hand and consume the home of the arsonist."

Winter fashions from Paris show the suit with the fuller skirt, the coat with elongated lines, the elegant, formal look for evening and the simple wool dress with fitted bodice. Hunt Spreads for Missing Infant

Michigan City, Ind., Oct. 17 (AP) — Police turned today to fathers and business absentee records in their search for a clue to the disappearance of a four-year-old boy. They planned to question all students on their whereabouts at dusk Saturday, when a law enforcement officer vanished from his car at St. Anthony hospital.

A three-day search of the city by 2,000 volunteers ended late yesterday. They had poked into basements and sewers and combed the nearby dundlands without result.

The distraught mother, Mrs. Francis Lyons, 37, offered the theory that the baby might have been taken by agents for a Chicago "baby black market" ring. She gave police a letter she had received containing clippings of magazine stories about such rackets.

Job - Hopper

Dear Miss Dix: My husband and I love each other dearly and are very happy with our 2-year-old son, but only trouble is that Ray, my husband is never satisfied with his work. He changes jobs so much that it's getting on my nerves. I want to go to work myself but he doesn't want me to leave our son. Ray claims a child that age needs his mother. I understand that but I believe if I could work for a while it would quiet my nerves. I also think it would be good for my son to be with other children in a nursery school. I think I am spoiling him.

BERTHA
Answer: Your going to work under these conditions will not solve your problem at all. In fact it will add another one. Your husband's job-hopping tendencies spring from the fact that he isn't interested in working at all. Once he finds out that your pay check will support the family adequately, that'll be the end of Ray's working days.

He Has Ability
The fact that he is able to secure job after job indicates he is a man of some qualifications and ability. Surely with these assets he could, if sufficiently interested, secure congenial employment. His failure to do so indicates lack of desire and ambition—not lack of opportunity. His strong opposition to your working outside the home shows that he really wants to be the bread winner for the family and the head of the house, but he does need encouragement to battle his indifference to specific employment.

Furthermore, your son is too young to be summarily left at a nursery school each day. He needs his mother, and by staying home with him you will do far more to maintain a united family than you will be earning a salary. The youngster should certainly mingle with other children his age, but not at the expense of his mother's companionship. If you think he's being spoiled let him attend a nursery school for a couple of hours a day but don't deprive him of security. His chief source of learning is still home and mother.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you think it would be wrong for me to take a married woman to dinner once a week? Her husband works nights and she is left alone until he returns. I haven't approached her on this matter but I imagine she is lonely. My intentions are those of honor and friendliness.

W. M.
Answer: Regardless of how pure your intentions are, it would be hard to make others accept your weekly dinner date on such a phony basis. A friendship between an unattached male and a lonely married woman is fraught with dangerous potentialities; in the best interests of all concerned I advise

Holland Mayor Is Visiting Warren

Warren, Oct. 17, (AP) — Mayor J. P. Drost of Borculo, Holland, today began a tour of southeast Arkansas as a guest of the city of Warren.

The mayor arrived here yesterday for an official visit. He was greeted ceremoniously at the courthouse, where he joined in singing the U. S. national anthem. Mayor Drost sang in Dutch.

He told a gathering of about 5,000 persons that the same "spirit of democracy" prevalent in America exists in the Netherlands.

In 1928, Borculo was struck by a storm. America sent help, and when Warren was devastated by a tornado in 1949, the residents of Borculo sent the town a gift of hand-carved furniture and other items.

Drost received the traditional key to the city from Warren Mayor P. E. Garrison, and in turn gave Garrison the silver medal of honor of the municipality of Borculo.

McCarthy 'Spy' Found Guilty

Lausanne, Switzerland, Oct. 16 (AP) — A Swiss federal court today sentenced Charles Davis, 23-year-old American Negro, to eight months in jail and expulsion from the country for authoring political information about United States diplomats for Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis).

The five-judge court also found Davis guilty of giving information of Swiss and American leftwing extremists in Switzerland to the United States consulate general in Geneva and the American embassy in Paris.

Davis was tried under a law which makes it a criminal offense to gather information on political activities of any Swiss citizen or resident here.

Since Davis already has been held in a Geneva jail for 11 months, while awaiting trial, he was set free immediately by presiding Judge Albert Rais.

Davis told newsmen he did not know exactly what he will do "but I won't return to the United States for quite a long time."

He said he probably will visit Germany, Italy or Austria but said he did not know where the money would come from.

Davis, while technically free, will remain under police surveillance until he leaves the country, unless a bond is posted.

Textile Jobber Paid to Get Tax Reduction

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—A textile jobber testified today he paid $100,000 to a New York insurance man who promised to give him $100,000 on taxes, and was denounced as "phony" by Denis W. DeLoach, then director of internal revenue.

Maxwell Shapiro, president of the Maxwell Shapiro Woolen company of Boston, told the story to a House ways and means subcommittee investigating evasion in the internal revenue bureau.

The time of his account was 1949. Since then Shapiro has been fined as the Boston collector said, a month ago, was indicated on charges of attempting $12,500 from taxpayers in trouble with his office.

Shapiro related that on April 21, 1949, he was visited at his office by Hugh Finnegan, a brother of the indicted St. Louis collector, James P. Finnegan, and Daniel Friedman, a New York insurance man.

At the time, Shapiro said, he had outstanding tax liabilities of approximately $142,000, of which $11,000 was owned by his woolen company and the rest represented personal liability.

Shapiro quoted Friedman as saying he could "straighten out my tax liabilities" and "shave it down to about $40,000."

Friedman, Shapiro continued, demanded a fee of $10,000 for "straightening his tax liabilities." He said Friedman also told him that he and Hugh Finnegan "just came down from a friend of yours, Collector Delaney."

"I called up the collector and asked about these two fellows. He

Candidate Accused of Joining Party

New Orleans, Oct. 16 (AP)—Charges that Rep. Huey P. Long, La., a gubernatorial candidate, joined a "Communist front organization" will be investigated Friday by the Democratic state committee.

Boggs immediately denied the allegations.

The charges were brought by Lucille May Grace, register of the state land office and only woman among the ten Democratic candidates. She filed the charges in Boggs last night in effort to have Boggs declared ineligible for the Jan. 15 Democratic primary.

Among other things, Miss Grace charged in her petition that Boggs had been a member of the American Student Union. The organization has been cited several times by the House committee on un-American activities as a Communist front.

Boggs, who had 18 hours in which to file a formal reply, immediately issued a statement directly refuting the charges. He said he was a member of the American Student Union in 1934, but had since been expelled from the organization.

Another Demo Party Leader Resigns

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Sidney Solomon resigned today as treasurer of the Democratic national committee.

He is the second top committee official to quit within a week. Chairman William M. Boyle, Jr., announced his resignation last Saturday.

Solomon, a St. Louis insurance man and friend of Boyle, disclosed his resignation after a call on President Truman.

He said he left his resignation at committee headquarters before visiting the White House and that details would be made public by the committee.

He attributed his action entirely to his belief that the new chairman "should have free reins to select" his own officials.

Boyle plans to step out after the committee meets and picks a successor. No date for the meeting has been announced yet.

Solomon said his resignation had "nothing whatsoever" to do with the "political influence" investigation on Capitol Hill but was based "entirely" on the belief that the new chairman should pick his own treasurer.

Solomon said Mr. Truman "heartily agreed" that the new chairman should have "free range" to pick his own associates, and Solomon said that the President understood that since he had given nearly 16 months to the committee assignment that he was entitled to step out.

Soldier Escorts Body of Brother

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 16 (AP)—Two Pine Bluff, Ark., brothers were en route to their home today.

One of the brothers, Sgt. Tony Rankin, was an official army escort for the body of his brother.

"seems to have lost his equilibrium," Miss Grace said in her petition that Boggs had taken an active part in a meeting.

"The object of which was to discourage young men from defending the United States in war," Boggs, she continued, "publicly and in writing stated that communism should be adopted as a solution for our national problems." The meetings and writings were not further identified.

She also said Boggs had "advocated a very mental principles mimicked to the United States and the state of Louisiana by favoring the formation of a world government."

There are 80,000 miles of steel wire in the two main load supporting cables of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Pfc. Thomas Rankin, killed in Korea, was arranged by a special army order.
